Thriving food scene pulling tour groups away from the water

Thanks to a delectable mix of local history and new restaurants, David Fleming said it might not be unusual to spot tourists leaving the Halifax waterfront to explore Gottingen and Agricola streets this summer.

Fleming, director of the North End Business Association, said he was happy to hear that Ambassatours Gray Line will soon introduce a couple of north-end stops on their Big Pink Sightseeing bus, giving most of the kudos to popular eateries.

"It's a natural transition. We've kind of had over the last two or three years an explosion; not just one, or two, or three restaurants," he said about spots like Lion & Bright Café, Agricola Street Brasserie,

The Nook, or Edna, in addition to favourites like Tess and Fred.

These and other local stores in the north end have an "authenticity" compared to ones created specifically for tourists, Fleming said.

"These are sort of the ... hidden gems or (what) the locals would suggest."

Emily Forrest of Local Tasting Tours has added a two-kilometre walking route of the area to show visitors nine restaurants with local beer tastings on foot.

"There's so much happening in the culinary scene in that district that it would just be silly to miss out on it," Forrest said.

She agreed there's a large tourism movement for people to experience a city "like locals would," and said the north end is a great place for newcomers.

"It's a very warm, community-minded neighbourhood. I find that people who live and work there ... are very open to conversation," Forrest said.

"You wouldn't get lost in the crowds on the waterfront."

Andrea Gray, spokeswoman for Ambassatours Gray Line, said the hop-off bus usually handles more than 30,000 people during the busy season. She said the Hydrostone stops were added to showcase areas like Fort Needham, and allow visitors to explore more places affected by the Halifax Explosion.

The new restaurants and businesses in the area "certainly make it a more attractive area" for tourists, she added.

Fleming said while it might take time for locals to get used to the double-decker bus squeezing in, money coming in from people outside HRM can only be good for the area.

Although many new restaurants don't last more than a few years, Fleming said, this spike in new businesses has "staying power" if development continues and the area grows.

Knife fight. Two men stabbed, charged

Both men involved in a knife fight over the weekend in north-end Halifax are facing charges.

Just after midnight on May 10, officers responded to a stabbing in the 100-block of Jarvis Lane where they found a 19-year-old with stab wounds to his torso.

He was taken to hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

A 31-year-old man was later arrested at a home on Highfield Park Drive in Dartmouth. He had also been stabbed and suffered non-life-threatening injuries.

Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said both men stabbed each other during the fight.

The 19-year-old was arrested Monday morning, a day after being released from hospital.

"They're both victims and both suspects," Bourdages said.

"It doesn't happen that often, but in this case it was the appropriate charge to be laid."

Shakur Oshay Jefferies, 19, and Devlin Sinclair Bundy, 31, each face charges of aggravated assault, assault with a weapon and possession of a weapon for a dangerous purpose.

No charges after baseball bats used in scuffle

No charges are expected to be laid after police received reports of several people fighting with baseball bats on Monday.

Police were called to Wilbur Court in Dartmouth around 12:30 p.m. and were told several people were fighting with bats.

After investigating the incident, police say there were only two people fighting, with several other people looking on.

No one was injured, and police say due to a lack of co-operation from those involved, no charges are being laid.

The two involved in the fight were known to one another, police say. METRO

Complainant's testimony. Ends after five days

The roommate of a woman allegedly sexually assaulted three years ago by a Halifax-based defence lawyer has taken the stand in the Nova Scotia Supreme Court.

"I remember waking up and she was in the doorway," said the roommate while testifying on Monday about finding his then-19-year-old housemate standing naked and incoherent outside his bedroom.

When asked to describe the way she was facing, the now-30-year-old man took a long pause before answering "toward me," and broke down into tears.

"It wasn't that she was drunk," said the roommate. "She just wasn't coherent."

The now-22-year-old complainant — who was allegedly drugged and sexually assaulted in her Halifax apartment by local lawyer Lyle Howe in March 2011 — testified she remembered little about coming back to her apartment after going out for drinks with Howe and his friend.

She said she awoke the following morning, March 21, 2011, nude and disoriented on her roommate's floor, with condoms strewn about the apartment and feeling sore in her anus and vagina.

According to the roommate, he laid a sleeping bag over her and lay down beside her after she passed out on the floor: "to comfort her ... as a friend."

In later questioning on Monday, the roommate admitted earlier in their relationship to wanting more than just a friendship with the complainant, saying "at one point I wanted to be with her."

Earlier that evening he had sent her three separate texts saying he loved her, though he explained it was usual for him to send those types of messages during that time.

The complainant finished her testimony Monday morning after an exhausting 18 hours on the stand — the longest both Crown and defence counsel said they had ever witnessed.

Halifax defence lawyer Lyle Howe, 29, has pleaded not guilty to the charges of sexual assault and issuing a stupefying agent.

Witness says he drank before court

The roommate of the complainant in the Lyle Howe sexual assault trial admitted to having drunk alcohol before testifying in court Monday morning.

Though he appeared sober while on the stand, when asked by defence counsel whether he'd had anything to drink so far that day he responded with "a few this morning."

The night of the alleged sexual assault, the roommate testified he was "wasted" — having finished most of a 750-milli-litre bottle of rum. Surveillance camera footage from the apartment showed him staggering in front of the building elevator later that night.

His first memory after heading for bed was waking up the following morning to find his roommate naked and incoherent in his doorway. METRO

Halifax Regional Police looks to diversify the force

Hiring. In-house curriculum could mean more women, visible minorities recruited

ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

Halifax's police force is developing its own version of a police academy in an effort to boost the number of women and visible minorities among its ranks.

Halifax Regional Police Chief Jean-Michel Blais told the Board of Police Commissioners Monday that senior brass are working on a program that will allow members of the general public to apply and then be trained in-house at HRP.

He said the traditional practice of hiring from college programs or from other police forces tends not to produce a very diverse workforce.

HRP recently added eight new members to its ranks, and although Blais said the combined level of policing experience was "very positive," all eight hires were white men.

"There's so few hirings that go on, and we've got such a large number of police officers who would want to come in from another police service ... it's a bit of a challenge to get the requisite number of women and visible minorities out there," said Blais.

"The reality is that ... our complainants are not just white males. Our bad guys are not just white males."

The chief said improving diversity is about more than just meeting quotas or being politically correct. He said there's economic and organizational benefits to a police force made up of people of all genders, races and backgrounds.

"By only having people who look the same and who for the most part act the same, you end up getting the same results," he said. "And we want to have different results."

The chief said there are several other municipal jurisdictions, as well as the RCMP, that use similar in-house training programs. The Halifax version won't be launched until 2016, giving senior brass time to develop a curriculum and time for a "critical mass" of vacancies to accumulate as current members retire.

A student at Halifax West High School suffered a broken cheekbone after police say he was punched and kicked by another student Monday morning.

Police were called around 11:30 a.m.

Police say the victim, who was 18, was punched and kicked several times and taken to hospital by paramedics.

Another student at the school, 18, was arrested near Doug Hadley, spokesman for the Halifax Regional School Board, said a teacher was in the vicinity of the fight outside the school but there was no warning.

Hadley said the victim was a Grade 12 student and knew the Grade 11 student who allegedly attacked him.

There was a lot of blood on the victim's face, Hadley said, but no weapons were

"It's not something we see with regularity though. We are more concerned with the well-being of the victim," said Hadley.

He said the school will hold their own investigation into what happened, which could lead to repercussions.

Halifax Regional Police spokesman Const. Pierre Bourdages said these kinds of fights "can't be tolerated," no matter where they occur.

Police board asks for delay in vote to move watchdog

Review of 2008 violent crime report.
Councillors opt to wait for input from police commission

RUTH DAVENPORT
ruth.davenport@metronews.ca

HRM's Board of Police Commissioners is asking regional councillors to defer a decision on one of two recommendations related to an exhaustive review of a report on violent crime.

The Review of the Task Force on Violence and Public Safety will be presented to regional council's Committee of the Whole Tuesday morning.

Dalhousie University criminologist Dr. Don Clairmont, along with a team of associates, compiled the report over the last year months.

The 218-page document

reviews the findings of a 2008 task force report, established by former mayor Peter Kelly in response to a rash of swarmings and the stabbing death of an American sailor in downtown Halifax.

"Don Clairmont and his team have done an incredible amount of work, consulted widely, and have given us a good synopsis of where we've come since the last report and some good ideas as to where we can go on the next one," said Mayor Mike Savage.

The review finds that although "signal crimes" like the murder of USS Doyle crew member Damon Crooks in 2006 have declined, Halifax is facing new challenges related to guns, the drug culture, gender-based violence and the "explosive growth" of social media-related issues like cyberbullying.

The commission was advised it would be "inappropriate" to discuss the report before Tuesday, but the members passed a motion asking council to defer a vote until the commission could debate the recommendation.

"I can't see myself making any kind of decision knowing that the police commission ... still as of today responsible for the safety office is not providing any input," said Coun. Barry Dalrymple.

"As a councillor, I want the input of the police commission, both police departments, and the public safety office."

Via Rail to spend $10.2 million to repair N.B. rail line

Via Rail has tentatively agreed to spend $10.2 million to repair tracks in northern New Brunswick used to provide passenger rail service to the Maritimes, federal Transport Minister Lisa Raitt announced Monday.

The deal would see repairs to a 70-kilometre stretch of track between Miramichi and Bathurst.

"The continuity of VIA Rail's ocean service on this rail line in northern New Brunswick is excellent news as it will not only benefit the users, but also each community along the route by maintaining jobs and supporting the local economy," said Raitt in a statement.

CN was planning on abandoning the line and Via Rail had previously said it couldn't afford to buy or maintain the stretch of track.

Unifor, Canada's largest private sector union, welcomed the announcement Monday after leading a months-long campaign with the public and Maritime politicians to save the line.

"The effects of abandoning this section of track would have had a devastating impact on so many communities along the ocean route," said national president Jerry Dias.

"It would have had a terrible impact on Via Rail workers and their families so we are pleased to see that the government has recognized the value of this service." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ratification

The agreement needs to be ratified by the boards of both Via Rail and CN, which owns the track.

All aboard! Public tours begin Wednesday for new harbour ferry

Halifax's new harbour ferry is scheduled to be unveiled to the public on Wednesday.

HRM and Metro Transit are set to show off the new ferry — called Christopher Stannix — to the Halifax media at 10 a.m., then will allow the public on board from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., weather permitting.

The event is taking place at Nathan Green Square near the Halifax ferry terminal building. It will be moved to the same time on Thursday if the weather doesn't cooperate.

The new ferry is the first for the Metro Transit fleet in 28 years.

It's named after Master Cpl. Christopher Stannix, a graduate of Auburn Drive High School who enlisted in the Canadian Armed Forces and was killed when the vehicle he was in struck a roadside bomb in Afghanistan. Stannix was only 24. METRO

Lt.-Gov. creates N.S. wine award

Nova Scotia's growing wine industry has climbed all the way to Government House.

On Monday, Lt.-Gov. J.J. Grant announced the creation of the Lieutenant Governor's Award for Excellence in Nova Scotia Wines.

According to a release, the award "recognizes the exceptional quality of locally sourced and produced wines, and honours the dedication and passion of Nova Scotia's wine industry."

All members of the Winery Association of Nova Scotia are invited to submit their best bottles to be considered for the award.

Wineries may submit up to three "commercially available grape wines," produced and sourced entirely in the province.

An independent panel of experts will select three to five wines as the best of Nova Scotia through a blind tasting, said the release.

Winning wines will be announced at an awards ceremony hosted by the lieutenant governor at Government House in July.

Entry forms and guidelines are available at winesofnovascotia.ca. The forms should be submitted by May 23, and bottles by May 30. METRO

Police taking bite out of violent crime in city

There was a significant drop in violent crime in the first three months of 2014 according to first-quarter crime statistics released on Monday by police in Halifax.

The statistics provided by Halifax Regional Police and Halifax RCMP show a drop of 15 per cent in violent crime, which includes a whopping 53 per cent decrease for robberies, 43 per cent for attempted murders and a 12.5 per cent dip in assaults.

The number of homicides was the same (three) when comparing January through March of 2014 with 2013.

Overall crime saw a drop of three per cent, with increases coming in drug offences (two per cent), and fraud (eight per cent).

The Nova Scotia government will announce it will spend $12 million over four years to fund scientific data on potential oil and natural gas opportunities in its offshore, The Canadian Press has learned.

A source familiar with details of the announcement said Premier Stephen McNeil will reveal on Tuesday the funding for geological research that is aimed at helping convince energy

The province's Energy Department has a research program called the Play Fairway Analysis that provides seismic data and other geological information to industry players looking for offshore oil and gas.

The government has said that the program has played a role in persuading BP and Shell Canada to launch major exploration projects.

Police are investigating after they say a fire was started in a Halifax church early Monday morning.

Just after 2 a.m., Halifax Regional Police responded to Saint Andrews Church at 6036 Coburg Rd. to help fire crews with an alarm call.

According to a release, the church was found to be "insecure" and some type of accelerant was used to set two piles of debris on fire in the church.

Halifax Fire quickly extinguished the small blaze, police said, and damage to the church was minimal.

A K-9 unit searched the area, but found nothing. Police have secured the scene, which will be processed by the forensic identification unit Monday morning.

Son charged with killing father. Family maintains Dennis Oland's innocence

Dennis Oland, who is charged with second-degree murder in the death of his father Richard, was accompanied by his mother, uncle and other members of the well-known Maritime family as his preliminary hearing got underway Monday.

A publication ban was placed on the evidence presented at the hearing in provincial court in Saint John, which has set aside 20 days for the proceedings.

documents released last May. Since then, pieces of the police investigation have been released by a provincial court judge after two media organizations argued that search warrants and affidavits to support them should be made public.

Among the assertions that have been released in those documents was a sworn police affidavit that says blood on a sports jacket found in Dennis Oland's home in Rothesay matched the DNA profile of his father. Search warrants also say that Dennis Oland was "experiencing financial hardships" and owed his father more than $500,000.

'It's not just a building anymore. It's a spirit'

Lac-Mégantic. Quebec town plans to rebuild the Musi-Café, destroyed in 2013's train disaster, as partly a gathering place, partly a memorial

Time has passed in Lac-Mégantic, but the anxiety has not.

Ten months after the train disaster that killed 47 in the Quebec town, residents should be gearing up for a bustling tourist season.

Instead, they are still finding their feet after the tragedy and hoping that a construction project begun last week will return some spirit to a town that has known only ghosts since July 6, 2013, when a runaway train loaded with crude oil jumped the tracks and wiped out a swath of the downtown.

The project that is being unveiled Tuesday — the reconstruction of the Musi-Café, a popular local bar — is both emotional and practical.

Practical because the destruction of the rallying point for local revellers, karaoke singers and visiting musical acts has left Lac-Mégantic without a nightlife or place to celebrate moments of joy.

It is charged with emotion because the bar was where about 30 of the 47 victims were enjoying drinks, music and friends when the train flipped, caught fire and exploded.

Just a few things were recovered: a beer sign, a few beer kegs, a drink shaker and a patio umbrella. But the most touching item bar owner Yannick Gagné now has in his possession is the charred steel box that held cash, coins, keys and deposit slips signed by staff, three of whom died that night.

It was thought to have been incinerated, but was discovered two months ago in debris around the town's former library, down the street from the Musi-Café's former site.

"They put it aside and when they opened it three weeks or one month later, they realized there was too much money for it to belong to the library and there were special objects inside like keys, because I always kept the keys inside," Gagné told Torstar News Service on Monday.

These items will make up part of a memorial that will adorn the new bar when it opens in August or September. It will honour all the townsfolk who died that morning, but especially the many whose last moments were inside the bar.

The new Musi-Café will be just 6,000 square feet of commercial space located at the end of Lac-Mégantic's relocated downtown strip, but it is nevertheless an "overwhelming project," said Marc Bovet, head of

Charges filed

The Crown prosecutor's office in Quebec says three people and a train company will face criminal negligence charges stemming from the disaster.

- 47 counts of criminal negligence have been filed against Thomas Harding, Jean Demaitre and Richard Labrie as well as the Montreal, Maine and Atlantic Railway Ltd.

Bone Structure, the Quebec firm handling the construction.

"It's not just a building anymore," he said. "It's a spirit."

"Yannick has been designated, whether he wanted it or not ... as being the leader of rebuilding this community, and it doesn't all come with bricks and mortar."

Human rights crisis. UN official slams Canada's record on First Nations

A UN rapporteur is at a loss to explain how a prosperous and sophisticated country like Canada has come to have on its hands a First Nations human-rights problem that has reached "crisis proportions."

James Anaya's report picks a fight with the federal government on several fronts — education, energy projects on reserves and missing or murdered aboriginal women, to name a few — and is sure to amplify tensions between Canada's First Nations and a federal government they so thoroughly distrust.

"It is difficult to reconcile Canada's well-developed legal framework and general prosperity with the human-rights problems faced by indigenous peoples in Canada that have reached crisis proportions in many respects," writes Anaya, the UN's special rapporteur on indigenous rights.

Aboriginal Affairs Minister Bernard Valcourt acknowledged more needs to be done, but highlighted steps the government has taken to give First Nations access to housing, education and matrimonial rights.

"Our government is proud of the effective and incremental steps taken in partnership with aboriginal communities. We are committed to continuing to work with our partners to make significant progress in improving the lives of aboriginal people in Canada," Valcourt said in a statement.

Worst-case scenario for many conservative Eurovision fans

Drag queen. European opinion divided after Austrian victory at music competition

It's the beard that divided a continent. The victory of whiskered drag queen Conchita Wurst in the Eurovision Song Contest had celebrities from Nigella Lawson to Russell Brand posting bearded selfies on the Internet in tribute — and Russian men snapping clean-shaven pictures in protest.

For millions of viewers, the annual Eurovision show is a cheesy music competition renowned for its camp, kitsch and electro beats. But the nation-based contest is also a potent mix of patriotism and politics in bubblegum wrapping.

Wurst's win has exposed a divide between Europe's progressives and conservatives that British tabloid The Sun

cheekily described Monday as the "Furred World War."

The statuesque brunette with the soaring voice of a diva and a full dark beard called her first-place finish in Saturday's contest a victory for tolerance and respect. Austrian President Heinz Fischer said it was "not just a victory for Austria, but above all for diversity and tolerance in Europe.”

the true face of European integration: “a bearded girl.” On social media, a variety of Russian men posted shaving-foam selfies alongside slogans such as “Get shaved, don’t be like a woman!”

Pro-Kremlin legislator Olga Batalina — deputy head of the family and maternity issues committee of the lower house of Russia's parliament — said Wurst's victory showed "it's not enough to have a talent and a good voice to win Eurovision; you also need to reject your nature, identity and traditions." She chalked the win up to "aggressive and persistent" gay propaganda.

That may sound like a lot of rhetoric over a talent show but Eurovision has always been more than a simple singing contest. Founded in 1956, the competition pits European nations against one another in pursuit of pop music glory.

But it is more generally loved, and mocked, for its

Not just a song contest

Politics, both personal and international, has often intruded on Eurovision.

- Transsexual Israeli singer Dana International sparked protests by ultra-Orthodox Jews in her homeland in 1998 but went on to win.
- Georgia pulled out in 2009 after its song We Don't Wanna Put In — a dig at Russian leader Vladimir Putin — was judged excessively political.

East Ukraine: Autonomy declared by pro-Russians

Pro-Moscow insurgents in eastern Ukraine declared independence Monday and sought to join Russia, undermining Ukraine's May 25 presidential election, strengthening the Kremlin's hand and putting pressure on Kyiv to hold talks with the separatists.

Russia signalled it has no intention of subsuming eastern Ukraine the way it annexed Crimea in March. Instead, Moscow is pushing to include eastern regions in negotiations on Ukraine's future — suggesting that Russia prefers a political, not military, solution to its worst standoff with the West since the Cold War.

Such talks are central to a potential path toward peace outlined Monday by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. The plan laid out by Swiss President Didier Burkhalter calls on all sides to refrain from violence and urges immediate amnesty, talks on decentralization and the status of the Russian language.

That's a key complaint of the armed insurgents who have seized power in eastern regions and clashed with government troops and police. But it's up to the Ukrainian government to take the next step.

Acting Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk pledged Monday to hold talks with those in Ukraine's east. But he gave no specifics and did not address Sunday's vote or the declarations of independence by the Donetsk and Luhansk regions.

With a national presidential election scheduled in 13 days, the regions of Donetsk and Luhansk declared independence Monday, and those in Donetsk even asked to join neighbouring Russia. The sprawling areas along Russia's border, home to about 6.6 million people, form Ukraine's industrial heartland.

The interim government in Kyiv had been hoping the presidential vote would unify the country behind a new, democratically chosen leadership. Ukraine's crisis could grow worse if regions start rejecting the presidential vote. Dozens have been reported killed since Ukrainian forces began trying to retake some eastern cities.

Pregnant drivers. Risk of car crashes jumps during 2nd trimester, study finds

Pregnant women who drive appear to be at a significantly higher risk of being in a serious car crash during the second trimester of their pregnancies, a new study suggests.

The researchers, who believe fatigue and sleep disruption are probably responsible, say the increase in risk is similar to what is seen for people who suffer from sleep apnea.

The authors of the study, published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, said they aren't trying to suggest pregnant women stop driving. In fact, they noted that men of a similar age have even higher rates of accidents than pregnant women do, so the answer is not turning over the keys to one's husband, or male partner.

But pregnant women should be aware of the elevated risk, and ensure that they drive with more caution, Redelmeier said: Stop at every stop sign, use indicator lights to signal turns, wear seat belts at all times.

"They were in my hotel for 2 1/2 years," he said Monday. "(The rooms) aren't rentable. I wanted them to pay my bills, so I could fix the hotel up. They didn't pay my bills, so I couldn't go back to doing weddings and conferences, the kind of stuff I used to do."

Bruneau said he got an $8-million offer to sell four years ago. He isn't expecting to get that much now.

The Manitoba Association of Native Firefighters had been given millions to care for evacuees, but Bruneau said the group stopped paying him when he accused it publicly of squandering money.

Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada is auditing the association's handling of the prolonged evacuation and the Red Cross is now responsible for the long-term care of about 2,000 evacuees.

Girls won't be freed until fighters are released: Boko Haram leader

Nigeria. Leader makes prisoner-swap demand in video that may show first evidence of kidnapped schoolgirls

A Nigerian Islamic extremist leader says nearly 300 abducted schoolgirls will not be seen again until the government frees his detained fighters.

A new video from Nigeria's Boko Haram terrorist network received Monday purports to show some of the girls and young women chanting Quranic verses in Arabic. The barefoot girls look frightened and sad and sit huddled together wearing grey Muslim veils. Some Christians among them say they have converted to Islam.

It is the first video evidence of the girls and young women since more than 300 were kidnapped from a northeastern school on April 15.

"I swear to almighty Allah you will not see them again until you release our people that you have captured," leader Abubakar Shekau says as he cradles an assault rifle in the video.

It is not known how many suspected Boko Haram members are detained by security forces. Hundreds were killed by soldiers last month when Shekau's fighters stormed the military's main northeastern barracks in Maiduguri city, the birthplace of Boko Haram.

In the video, two of the girls are brought to the front and questioned by an unseen man. "Why have you become a Muslim?" the man asks one.

"The reason why I became a Muslim is because the path we are on is not the right path," the girl says, nervously turning her body from side to side, her eyes darting off to the side. "We should enter the right path so that Allah will be happy with us."

Families have said that most of the girls abducted are Christians.

Fifty-three schoolgirls have escaped by themselves and 276 are missing, police say.

Ads. Frozen food makers hope to warm consumers up to products with campaign

Frozen food makers planned to launch their first national TV ad in the U.S. in defence of their products on Tuesday in a bid to boost slipping sales.

The ad will include the tag line "Frozen: How Fresh Stays Fresh," and is intended to address negative misconceptions people have about frozen foods.

The push comes as frozen food sales have been hurt by consumers moving to food they feel is fresh or natural.

The push is being funded by companies including General Mills, H.J. Heinz, Jasper Wyman & Son, Kellogg, Lakeside Foods, the Schwan Food Co. and Seneca Foods.

Although frozen vegetables are often touted as being just as wholesome as their fresh counterparts, frozen meals and snacks are widely seen as being full of sodium and preservatives, or lacking in the taste department.

Between 2009 and last year, U.S. sales of frozen meals are down three per cent at $8.92 billion, according to Euromonitor International. And this year, the market researcher is forecasting a decline of an additional two per cent.

In the 30-second commercial set to run on cable and network TV on Tuesday, a voiceover states that "freezing is nature's pause button." It also asks viewers to take a "fresh look at frozen," as images of appealing foods that were apparently once frozen are shown. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Prosthetic hands get a modern update

DEKA Arm System. The latest twist on the 1912 invention lets amputees open envelopes, pick up eggs

Modern life is quickly becoming stranger, and for amputees, better than science fiction.

Take the revolutionary new prosthetic limb that looks, and is, completely cutting edge.

The limb is called the DEKA Arm System — and it was developed in New Hampshire by serial inventor/genius Dean Kamen and his team. The thing even has fingernails.

Technology for prosthetic hands hasn't had too many radical advances. Until now, most have been variations on the theme of the 1912 invention of the clasping hook prosthetic.

The DEKA represents a mind-boggling advancement.

Wireless sensors placed under the foot of the user allow them to control six different grips. And that means, as you'll see in the demonstration (scan the Metro AR photo to see), that a user with one hand can now perform previously difficult tasks like opening an envelope.

The impetus for the invention was a DARPA (Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency) initiative called The Revolutionizing Prosthetics Program. Its goal is "so service members with arm loss may one day have the option of choosing to return to duty. Additionally, the dexterous hand capabilities developed under the program have already been applied to small robotic systems used in manipulating unexploded ordnance, thus keeping soldiers out of situations that have led to limb loss."

The new system has just been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration,

In this video screenshot, Fred Downs shows how he can use different grips on the DEKA Arm System to open and handle mail. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved the system for commercialization last week. SCREENGRAB meaning that it can be manufactured and sold. It's powerful enough to hold a hand drill, while sensitive enough to allow a user to pick up items as delicate as eggs. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The concept of seasoning McDonald's famous fries debuted in Hong Kong in 2005. Now, the first Shakin' Flavor Fries has hit restaurants in Northern California.

It's the latest move out of the fast-food burger industry to pimp up the standard burger accompaniment.

ME TARZAN, YOU BREADWINNER

Earlier this month, Fox News hosted a discussion about whether it's problematic for a woman to make more money than her husband. Apparently, segment host Clayton Morris believes female breadwinners are causing serious marital issues among heterosexual couples.

"Isn't there some sort of biological, innate need for men to be the caveman?" he asked a panel of guests.

A genuinely concerned Morris then went on to argue that men should be responsible for "going out and bringing home the dinner" and it is emasculating for a husband to be out-earned by his wife.

I understand that no one has ever accused the talking heads at Fox of being overly feminist, but this news segment seemed particularly chauvinistic, even for them.

It's hard to believe that people are still clinging to these outdated gender roles. Hosting a televised debate about

SHE SAYS
Jessica Napier
metronews.ca

how "Alpha women" are undermining their husbands and contributing to some sort of imagined societal breakdown seems like something that might have happened in 1954, not 2014.

Are we really supposed to believe that modern men are so fragile and insecure? A 2013 Pew Research Study found that almost a quarter of married mothers in the U.S. earn more than their husbands, which means there must be a lot of bruised male egos out there, according to Morris's caveman logic.

In my opinion, women who are the primary income earners in a relationship are about as "problematic" as husbands who change diapers or do the laundry.

Children are incredibly draining on all of your resources — time, energy and definitely money — and nobody should be criticized for contributing to the family finances. A man's self-esteem might be closely linked to his career, but so is mine.

The women I know are far more likely to find self-fulfillment by succeeding in a lucrative career than perfecting their ability to bake a cake or be a "good wife" in the traditional, Fox News kind of way.

Raising a family is a joint effort. Married partners are playing on the same team, and men and women shouldn't be competing over their paycheques.

There are so many different types of households, and expecting the partner with the most testosterone to fulfil the role of "provider" at all times is a completely archaic notion.

Female breadwinners aren't an issue; sexist news anchors who broadcast their patriarchal opinions and disprove of women with high-paying jobs are the real problem in this scenario.

Men should be proud to be coupled up with a successful partner, not worrying about how their wife's salary impacts their own masculine identity.

WE ACT: CANADA DOES GOOD

Stories from hospital hallways

Each month, we profile a Canadian who's up to a whole lot of good. Here's one we'd like you to meet:

Who: Jackie Kinder, community volunteer with Childcan, London.

What: Fundraising and organizing community events to help support the families of young people diagnosed with cancer.

Why: To provide the families with the financial and community support they need to focus on their children.

Jackie met 14-year-old Stephanie Simmons, a three-time brain-tumour survivor, when she began volunteering with Childcan. "She's my hero," says Jackie. "Knowing what she went through and knowing that through it all she was so brave, so concerned with helping other children, that's what hooked me." Since then, Jackie has taken a leading role fundraising for Childcan, participating in the Inside Ride cycling event and the National Day of Action for kids with cancer at the CN Tower.

We bring them into the Childcan family, and I fundraise to help with gas, cafeteria vouchers, parking and credit-card bills. The financial hardships are major — but help is always there."

You've spent your life working with young people, first as a teacher and now as a volunteer. What advice do

"Take the time to find and develop your passion for a cause. I've met some wonderful volunteers, and they are all happier for the work they do. They've learned that happiness doesn't mean all that you own — it's about giving back to other people. It's something I learned from Stephanie: it's the feeling you get doing something worthwhile for other people in your community that keeps us going."

But this is a party, after all. And what party is complete without music? Enter the enormous cruise ship MSC Magnifica — launched from this very harbour in 2010 — and its bone-rattling, horn-fired rendition of Seven Nation Army.

St. Vincent wants all of your mind this summer

Indie musical landscape.

Singer Annie Clark comes into her own, creating a live show unlike any other St. Vincent concert

PAT HEALY

Metro World News in Boston

Just because St. Vincent's summer itinerary is packed with more than a dozen festival dates on four continents doesn't mean that Annie Clark is scaling back the theatrics of the St. Vincent concert experience.

The singer and guitarist will still force herself down a giant set of pink stairs, writhe around against a storm of strobe lights and eventually command the procession, purposefully poised like a cross, from an oversized pink throne.

"We've worked really hard on this strange fever dream of a show, bringing it to life," says Clark, "so it's important that people get the whole experience, even if it's at a festival."

That "strange fever dream of a show," along with the self-titled fifth St. Vincent album, may be the most definitive statement from any artist this year. From Clark's fat guitar leads to her strange and simple lyrics — any of which can be pulled out to illustrate what St. Vincent is all about in 2014 — it feels like the artist has truly discovered her identity.

"I'll always be evolving and be restless and wanting to move violently into the future," says Clark of arriving at something that could be considered iconic, "but I was reading Miles Davis's autobiography and it was saying how the hardest thing about being a musician is to sound like yourself. I can hear one note of Miles or Coltrane and know that it's them and it's the world that they have painstakingly created to be unmistakable. I just thought that this record for me was something where I had successfully created a landscape that was my own."

This landscape includes Clark's stylized lavender/gray old lady hair, of which she says: "Everyone is really obsessed with being young and youth culture and this sort of erroneous idea that things are the best when you are young, and I am young, but I wanted to see what it would look like to go in the opposite direction." And this landscape also includes conscious choreography in the live show, the likes of which hasn't been seen on a St. Vincent tour before. Clark says she was inspired by doing an album and tour with David Byrne, whose live show included an eight-piece brass band moving around the stage and creating what Clark says was "this whole other level of drama and whimsy and symbolic subconscious meaning that the audience can pick up on."

"I wanted to create a real experience for people, especially in this day and age where we are kind of obsessed with capturing moments at the expense of living them," she says. "I wanted to encourage people as much as possible to be present and be so engrossed in the show that they are not tempted to check their text messages."

SNL musical guest

St. Vincent will be the musical guest on the season finale of Saturday Night Live this weekend.

DVD review

Her

Director. Spike Jonze

Most sci-fi films make a human/machine love connection seem perverse or at least far out, yet Spike Jonze's Her treats it as a mild novelty.

Set about five years in the future in techno-fabulous L.A., it's nominally a simple sci-fi romance of a man, played by Joaquin Phoenix, falling in love with a machine, voiced by Scarlett Johansson.

There's much more going on than this, of course, as you'd expect from the director who brought us the layered head-spinners Being John Malkovich, Adaptation and Where the Wild Things Are. The film's subliminal message is that the human touch is in danger of being replaced with an "on" switch.

Phoenix and Johansson make for a completely convincing couple. Jonze sidesteps sniggers, shivers and convention, putting in plot twists that are at once shocking and completely logical.

He's really interested in the difficulty of making and maintaining emotional and intellectual ties, no matter whether the heart is made of flesh or silicon.

Extras include several making-of featurettes.

This season, prevent a senseless tragedy by steering clear of train tracks. Not only is riding an ATV on a railroad's right of way illegal, you may be too focused on having a good time to hear a train coming.

Angel Olsen gets personal

Lonely love songs. The emotionally charged singer relies only on herself as a songwriter, and the result is beautifully intimate

Metro World News in Boston

When Angel Olsen was working on her second studio album, Burn Your Fire For No Witness, which came out in February, she says she frequently found herself adhering to the whole For No Witness idea.

"It was all written in the same period, so whenever inspiration came to me, I would stop what I was doing because I could, because I was working for myself," she says. "So it was like, 'I can go home now — instead of this party — and write all of these things!'"

Wait, so she would literally leave parties?

"I remember weird ex-

Angel Olsen's Burn Your Fire For No Witness is out now on Jagjaguwar. CONTRIBUTED amples," she confirms. "I wrote Iota when it was the middle of summer and I was having kind of a weird day, and my friends had this family picnic at the park and I left. At the time, we lived in Chicago and we had access to this place that had a rooftop. I went up there and had a beer and a guitar. It was just me by myself and I recorded [it] on my phone."

The resulting album includes the sort of confessional musings that might occur in conversation between close friends a few beers deep. Her vocals and lyrics are equally intimate.

"Just listening back to stuff of mine, it's like, 'OK, I guess I'm pretty obsessed with the idea of death and being alone and losing people,' but it's also about finding people," she says. "I feel like it's something that we all think about all the time, but it's not something we all talk about. I don't know if people get anything from it, but I'm not trying to create a kind of cathartic experience for anyone; it just happens to be the things I write about."

Olsen says the way she writes music has changed, because the way she listens to music has changed.

"I would listen to these songs and be like, 'Why are these people always talking about love?' They're just so disappointed and so lonely, it's ridiculous," she says. "And then I would listen to it again, and the more you live, the more that these simple thoughts cut deeper. You have more experiences with people and more experiences in general, with your friendships changing; I think that I've developed a different perspective on writing songs on stuff like that and embracing it. I think that's why I tend to obsess over it."

Back to the future

Michael Fassbender GETTY IMAGES

Michael Fassbender headed for Prometheus sequel

During a promo tour for X-Men: Days of Future Past, a brief exchange between Michael Fassbender, James McAvoy and a journalist from the website Collider shed some light on the still hypothetical Prometheus 2. Fassbender confirmed that the follow-up to Prometheus is indeed being planned, and that he will gladly return to the role of the android David. AFP

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Community doesn't make the cut for a sixth season

MELINDA TAUB

Metro World News

The drama behind the scenes on beleaguered NBC sitcom Community was always nearly as compelling as the jokes onscreen. Perennially low-rated, Community faced cancellation every year for its five seasons. Now the scrappy little show that could finally can't: NBC gave it the axe last week.

The show's obsessive fans won't give up at such a minor setback, however. Fans have already begun petitioning production company Sony to shop Community to other networks.

But the plan won't work unless the most important fan of all, creator/showrunner Dan Harmon, is onboard, and he sounds decidedly unenthused.

"[W]hen Sony called me on Friday with the news, there was brief discussion at the end of the call about the concept of the show living elsewhere, and I was definitely in the 'eh' column," he writes on his blog.

"For a million reasons, some selfish, some creative, one logistic, five sexual, three racist (in a good way) and, oddly, nine isometric."

Ben's gambling Garners negative attention from Jennifer

Ben Affleck is developing quite a reputation in Las Vegas, with several casinos accusing the Argo star of card counting — and his wife, Jennifer Garner, is less than thrilled, according to Star magazine. "Jen demanded to go to Vegas with Ben because she doesn't trust him, and he felt like he had no choice but to take her," a source says of the couple's visit last month that didn't end well for Affleck. "But after their dinners there each night, she would go back to their suite while Ben would stay out all night playing cards, betting thousands of dollars at a time. It makes Jen so mad, but once Ben starts gambling he can't stop." Until the casino intervenes, at least. And the source claims that when Affleck was busted by the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino, Garner was by his side: "She looked totally bored and annoyed," the source says.

Solange Knowles GETTY IMAGES

She may be young, but she's ready to throw down

In an exclusive video from TMZ.com, you can see Beyoncé's sister, Solange Knowles, viciously attacking Jay-Z in an elevator after the Met Ball. A man who appears to be Jay-Z's bodyguard holds the swinging and kicking Knowles back, but she makes contact with the Hova at least three times. For her part, Beyoncé just kind of stands there.

The video was taken by a surveillance camera in the elevator of the Standard Hotel after the big gala on May 4th during an after party. As TMZ.com points out, the bodyguard stops the elevator at one point, probably in hopes of keeping this private affair private.

Too late.

Benji Domestic Medium Hair

Six-year-old Benji is an affectionate, outgoing boy with a perfect personality. He is well-adjusted, interactive and likes people. He seems so unassuming until you pay attention to him... then he's all antics and hijinks while responding enthusiastically to cuddles and back scratches. Give him a gentle rub on his back side and he rolls over with all four paws in the air.

For a bigger boy, he has a tiny, almost comical purr. We believe he would settle quickly into a new home with a person or family who loves him as much as we do. Please visit Benji today.

Hoop screams: Bieber gets booed at basketball game

Justin Bieber isn't faring well in the court of public opinion, if his attendance at a Los Angeles Clippers game Sunday is any indication. The troubled Canadian pop star showed up court-side with his mother, Pattie Mallette, to celebrate Mother's Day watching game four of the NBA playoffs, and the other fans in attendance apparently didn't think that was a great idea, according to E! News. "The entire place booed him when Staples Center cameras put him on the Jumbotron," a source says.

You are Clooney-ly invited to mingle with models rather than mama

Woof, I don't envy George Clooney's friends. They had a terrible choice to make on Sunday: Spend the day with their moms for Mother's Day, or slip away to attend George Clooney and Amal Alamuddin's engagement party. On the one hand, a glittering group of A-listers; on the other, your mother realizing you'd rather hang out with George Clooney than her. Among those who chose the Cloon were supermodel Cindy Crawford, who co-hosted the event at her Malibu restaurant Café Habana, according to the Daily Mail. Crawford is a longtime Clooney pal and she and her husband Rande Gerber often double-date with Clooney and his arm candy du jour. Other guests included Bono, who could be a friend of bride or groom — he shares Clooney's passion for human rights, and Alamuddin, of course, is a human rights lawyer.

Looks can be deceiving — even when it comes to boredom

Why do we get bored?
One professor weighs in

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News in New York City

You might think it's your fault you're dozing off in a classroom or office, but that's not always the case.

There are clear categories of boredom triggered by one's environment, says pioneering researcher Dr. Thomas Goetz from the University of Konstanz in Germany (see sidebar).

What is the most common misconception about boredom?

It's important to recognize the different types, and clearly define the differences.

You say apathetic boredom is the worst — how bad can it get?

The problem is that it makes every experience negative and the potential for arousal is low. You can't do anything against this state and it can become a big problem related to depression.

What puts us at risk?

Some people tend to a specific state but only to a small degree; each experience is based on situations. It's important that people recognize the forms. Often the problem is a lack of freedom, such as at school. Teachers should be aware and try to find individualized methods that give students choice.

Is there a risk that teaching

Researchers believe there are five types of boredom. ISTOCK boredom could cause more boredom?

There is an argument from anxiety research that awareness increases the problem, but in this case it is about knowing and realizing, and this goes hand in hand with resolving it.

What follow-up research is needed?

We didn't measure the effects. We need diagnostic instruments to show the experiences of boredom.

Types of boredom

Here are the various categories.

- Indifferent boredom. A relaxing, possibly positive type — “a general indifference to, and withdrawal from, the external world.”

- Calibrating boredom. Wandering thoughts — “general openness to behaviours aimed at changing the situation.”

- Searching boredom. “Actively seeking out specific ways of minimizing feelings of boredom.”

- Reactant boredom. Causes sufferers “to leave the boredom-inducing situation and avoid those responsible for this situation (e.g., teachers).”

- Apathetic boredom. Impossible to break from this mode — “dangerous, similar to depression.”

TALENT MEETS EXPERIENCE

Fashion blogger of xodustin.com and lifestyle columnist Dustin McCormack has always been on top of the latest fashion styles and trends, but now McCormack is also on top of the business behind them.

McCormack is enrolled in the fashion design and merchandising program at the Centre for Arts and Technology in order to get a well-rounded education that fulfills all aspects of the industry.

"As someone who knew previously they did not aspire to have a future as a designer, I wanted to make sure I was also getting an in-depth look into the business side as well," says McCormack. "I found the fact that the fashion department at the college strives to prepare you for the industry and keep everything very real, a major attraction."

I WANTED TO MAKE SURE I WAS ALSO GETTING AN IN-DEPTH LOOK INTO THE BUSINESS SIDE AS WELL.

The program has given McCormack the opportunity to work behind the scenes on almost every fashion event hosted in Halifax within the past year and a half, including being a part of the organizational team for Atlantic Fashion Week.

"All of these experiences look fantastic on my resumé and have given me so much hands-on experience," says McCormack.

Visit digitalartschool.com.

Spell success, in French

In Canada, the ability to speak both official languages — English and French — adds more than just another skill on the resumé, but offers numerous cultural and societal benefits as well.

"Having French next to any other language will open up numerous doors to new opportunities," says Neda Ghaferi, French language training advisor at Université Sainte-Anne.

Designed to meet the needs of each student, the Université Sainte-Anne is the only French-language post-secondary institution in Nova Scotia and offers both full and part-time French language training, taught by some of the most experienced teachers in the region.

The full-time program offers students up to six different levels, while the part-time day and evening program is offered every season of the year, with all of the 17 different levels offered each day.

Ghaferi says career development is also a great reason to add French to your skill set.

"They'll be able to perform tasks in both of Canada's official languages, which would decrease Canada's demographical differences and result to better client services."

For more information about these programs, call 902-424-1164, or visit usaintanne.ca/clts.

Do you have a flair for design?

Consider interior decorating for a rewarding career

For those with a passion for decorating and are looking for a career that utilizes your creativity, style and personality, a career in interior decorating could be an excellent fit for you.

The interior decorating program at Success College provides comprehensive training in residential and commercial interior decorating and space planning.

"Professional interior decorators create and implement decorating plans for homes, offices, shops and other professional spaces," says Janice Currie, director of Success College.

"We provide a strong foundation in creating functional and aesthetically pleasing spaces as well as project management and business practices."

As a professional in this business you might advise clients on colour schemes, layouts, lighting, furniture, floor coverings, paint, wallpaper and more. Students will be trained in construction plan drafting, space planning, visual communications, and the elements of design.

LEARN BUSINESS AND ACCOUNTING AT MBC

Maritime Business College gets you ready

Consistent with its mission of being a pioneer in the field of business, Maritime Business College has an expertise in small business management and the field of accounting.

The small business management program is designed for people that want to work in small, entrepreneurial companies.

"Working in a smaller company is rewarding because you gain valuable experience working in a variety of different disciplines," says Janice Currie, director, Maritime Business College.

"It can also be very rewarding because decisions are made quickly, and you can see the impact of your efforts and contributions to the company," she added.

This program also prepares people for setting up and managing their own business.

"As our economy diversifies, small business is growing in importance and offers many career options for young and old alike," says Currie.

If you love a job with a clear process, have a knack for numbers, and pay attention to detail, consider a job in accounting.

The college first taught 'accountancy' when it opened in 1899, and the founder was a certified accountant.

"Our program carries on this long tradition and helps meet the demand for people who can create and interpret the financial data necessary for day-to-day decision making," says Currie.

These programs can be completed in a year or less.

Lamb gets a different type of R & R courtesy of raspberry and rosemary

Health Solutions

Mary had a little lamb

NUTRI-BITES
Theresa Albert
DHN, RNCP
myfriendinfood.com

Mary had a little lamb, because the meat is moist and rich and satisfying, and a little lamb is all you need. Bahaha. OK, that's enough.

Delicious lamb is raised in Canada and is generally a local, grass-fed food.

That said, if you don't check the label, you are more than likely enjoying an imported product from New Zealand.

Lamb leg or rump can be a little higher in fat and calories but it has all of the benefits of other animal meats like protein, B12 and zinc.

Lamb chops are generally a quick-cooking, leaner option and a nice change.

There is a slightly gamey flavour to lamb that can be an acquired taste but chops are generally milder. For newbies, sweet flavours like mint or raspberry are great compliments to minimize the grassiness.

The trick for cooking lamb chops is to be sure to preheat the grill to a very high heat but to only cook each chop for three or four minutes per side.

The protein is delicate and the meat is thin, so chops don't need much attention to be tender and delicious.

Let the chops rest for a few minutes before serving so that all of the juices remain within the meat.

Get 'em while they're grilled

1. In skillet over medium-high, heat oil until lightly smoking.

Ingredients

- 3 tbsp sesame oil
- 2 tsp minced garlic
- 1 tsp minced fresh ginger
- 2 tbsp chopped canned black beans
- 2 tsp dark miso
- 2 tbsp minced red onion
- 1 tbsp each minced Peppadew and jalapeno peppers
- 1 tbsp sliced scallions
- 1 tbsp chopped fresh cilantro
- 3 tbsp oyster sauce
- 2 tbsp soy sauce
- 2 tsp sugar
- 1/4 cup sake
- 1/4 cup water, plus 1 tbsp, divided
- 2 tbsp orange juice
- 1 tbsp cornstarch
- 3 dozen oysters

Add garlic and sauté 1 minute. Add ginger, then sauté another minute. Add black beans, miso, red onion, Peppadews, jalapenos, scallions and cilantro. Sauté 1 minute, then stir in the oyster sauce, soy sauce, sugar, sake, 1/4 cup of water and orange juice. Bring to a boil, then simmer for 2 minutes.

2. In glass, stir cornstarch and remaining 1 tablespoon of water. Stir into the sauce and cook, stirring, for another minute. The sauce will be very thick and chunky. Set aside.

3. Heat the grill to high.

4. Shuck the oysters, pouring off any extra juice and leaving the oyster in the bottom half of the shell. Top each oyster with 1 teaspoon of the sauce. Set the oysters directly on the grill grates and cook for about 30 seconds, or until just barely heated. Use tongs to carefully transfer the oysters (the shells will be hot) to a platter. Serve immediately. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

GOLF GUIDE

A total of 65 Canadian courses are fully certified members of the Audubon Co-operative Sanctuary System, with hundreds more working towards certification. SHUTTERSTOCK

Learn to think like a pro

You have hit hundreds of balls at the range and your swing is looking good. Now it's time to take your game to the next level by booking an on-course playing lesson with a teaching pro.

"Playing lessons are a great way for golfers to learn to think strategically on the course," said Ted Stonehouse, the head professional at Clovelly Golf Course in St. John's, N.L. "Golf is like chess. To score well, you have to think at least two moves ahead."

On which side of the tee box should you set up? What's the optimum target line? Should you try to make a shot where trouble looms, or is the smart play a lay-up?

"A pro can help you develop a master plan suited to your talent level," Stonehouse said. "Suppose a particular hole at your home course has been giving you trouble. Well, let's look at it in a new way. Let's try a different club or a slightly easier route to the green."

A playing lesson also offers a golden opportunity to watch and emulate a professional's approach to the game. Study the pro's pre-shot routine, how they read putts, and the tempo of their swing.

"Some people are a little intimidated at first when they play with a pro," Stonehouse said. "But just relax and enjoy the experience. And remember that you're doing us a favour by getting us out of the pro shop." BRIAN KENDALL

Going green on the greens

Environment. More golf courses are embracing initiatives for wildlife and habitat management

BRIAN KENDALL
For Metro

Once ranked alongside the razing of rainforests as an ecologically hostile activity, golf has embraced the green movement with the zeal of the converted.

A total of 65 Canadian courses are fully certified members of the Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary System, with hundreds more working towards certification. The international program sets targets in a variety of areas, from wildlife and habitat management to water conservation and quality control.

And then there are the courses that go even further by making their green initiatives all part of the fun and attraction of playing them.

Dean Piller, the superintendent at Victoria's Cordova Bay Golf Course, conducts birdwatching tours twice a year, having worked hard to attract an astonishing variety of land and sea birds to the property.

Nesting boxes were strategically placed around the course, as well as feeders to help birds survive the winter at a course open year-round. From about 60 different bird species routinely seen at Cordova Bay several years ago, the count has now risen to more than 70, from cormorants and blue herons to barn swallows and bald eagles.

At Stewart Creek Golf and Country Club, a Rocky Mountain layout in the environmentally sensitive Bow Valley near Canmore, Alta., wildlife corridors are incorporated into the course routing, as well as native grasses to provide forage for migrating animals. Golfers thrill to watching bear, elk and other wildlife travel through the course.

But perhaps the most original initiative is found at Manitoba's Clear Lake Golf Course in Riding Mountain

National Park, where there is often a strong, and environmentally beneficial, whiff of french fries in the air.

The smell is expelled by the exhausts of six maintenance machines rigged to run on used cooking oil gathered from nearby restaurants. As much as 10,000 litres of an otherwise useless waste product is recycled this way each year.

"The only downside is that golfers are reporting a constant craving for fast food," superintendent Greg Holden said jokingly.

Boldness is key on the greens

It's almost impossible to overstate the importance of making short putts. Consistently missing three- and four-footers will quickly destroy your confidence and ruin your scores.

No less an authority than Annika Sorenstam believes that boldness is the key.

"Be in charge," she said. "A great way to practise making short putts is to place a tee at the back of the cup and hit toward it with conviction. Make a decision and boom — drop the putt."

Top instructor David

Leadbetter suggests choking down on the putter for better control. Grip the club lightly, make a short stroke and accelerate through impact.

Just as crucial is resisting the temptation to look up immediately after you have hit the ball. This will ensure that you complete your stroke and keep the putter's face square to the target line.

"Wait for the rattle when the ball drops into the cup," Sam Snead liked to say. "It's the sweetest sound in golf."

Visualize a better score

KENDALL
For Metro

Even if you can't find time to play or practise, it's possible to "visualize" your way to better golf scores.

Research by scientists and behavioural psychologists has shown that creating a mental image of something you want to accomplish — like a drive down the heart of the fairway — and repeating that image over and over again, sends the same electrical impulses or instructions to the muscles as actually carrying it out.

Almost everyone has hit shots even a professional might envy. By recalling these positive mental images, you are reminded that there is nothing stopping you from doing it again. Some scientists believe that mental rehearsal creates the neural pathways necessary for actual performance. The brain and body work together to create a successful result.

Learning to apply the same visualization techniques and mental discipline on the golf course is an even more certain path to lower scores.

Jack Nicklaus, one of the greatest golfers of all time, said he never hits a shot without having a vivid mental image of it in his head.

"It's like a colour movie," he said. "First, I 'see' the ball where I want it to finish, nice and high and sitting up on the bright green grass. Then the scene quickly changes and I 'see' the ball going there — its path, trajectory and shape, even its behaviour on landing."

Unique challenges.

Canada offers some truly beautiful golf holes that are world destinations

BRIAN KENDALL
For Metro

Totemic symbols of our game, Canada's signature golf holes are so uniquely beautiful that golfers travel from around the world to play them. Here are four holes built for immortality.

18th hole, Glen Abbey Golf Club, Oakville, Ont.

Tiger Woods famously sealed his victory in the 2000 Canadian Open on the par-five closing hole by slashing a 210-yard bunker shot over a green-side pond to the back edge of the putting green. So astonishing was the shot that, since then, some golfers who visit the Jack Nicklaus-designed layout can't resist the temptation to drop a ball in the same bunker and try their luck.

12th hole, Algonquin Golf Course, St. Andrews By-the-Sea, N.B.

Offering sweeping views across Passamaquoddy Bay to the state of Maine, architect

Tom McBroom's oceanfront Par 3 became one of the Atlantic coast's most celebrated holes the moment of its unveiling in 1999. Stretching 156 yards from the back tees, the 12th plays severely downhill to a small, cashew-shaped green perched like an emerald infinity pool at the water's edge.

4th hole, Fairmont Banff Springs Golf Course, Banff, Alta.

the world, photographs of architect Stanley Thompson's legendary Par 3 Devil's Cauldron have come to define their mental image of the Canadian game. From an elevated tee isolated amidst the boreal hush of a Rocky Mountain forest, golfers hit their tee shot over an impossibly picturesque boulder-filled glacial lake to a sloping and heavily bunkered green set in the shadow of looming Mount Rundle.

6th hole, Greywolf Golf Course, Panorama, B.C.

Cliffhanger, the aptly named Par 3 sixth hole at this Doug Carrick-designed layout, features a long, gut-churning carry over the sheer drop of Hopeful Canyon to a green perched along the edges of vertical rock cliffs. Rugged peaks tower in every direction, evergreens strain toward the sky, and from the green, golfers can see for kilometres down an incredibly beautiful mountain valley.

Tee off in a wee bit of history

Like everyone who loves the game, you have fantasized about a golf vacation in Scotland and you are determined to make it happen this year.

With more than 550 courses, golf's birthplace offers an overwhelming choice of possible itineraries. But nowhere is Scotland richer in famous links than along its northeast coast, where the roster includes Muirfield, Cruden Bay, Royal Dornoch, Carnoustie, Trump International and the Old Course in St. Andrews. All belong on any ranking of the world's top 100 courses.

Rent a car and happily spend a week or two golfing your way along the rugged coastline. But if you are pressed for time or don't want to do so much driving, then consider basing yourself in Edinburgh, a city of almost unrivalled Georgian splendor, and make daily golf treks to the adjoining district of East Lothian. Marketed as Scotland's Golf Coast, this stretch of the Firth of Forth coastline offers 22 courses, including Muirfield and two other world-class links, North Berwick and Gullane No. 1.

Edinburgh is also just two hours by train or car from St.

Andrews, the cradle of the game and a town as recognizably Scottish as the kilt and sporran.

Once settled in at the Old Course Hotel or Rusacks Hotel in St. Andrews, enter your name in the ballot to play the Old Course, the experience of a lifetime. Or purchase a three-day unlimited pass and play to your heart's content on the six other courses managed by the St. Andrews Links Trust on the old sod where it all began.

Canadiens use 1-2 punch of Pacioretty and Price to send series back to Boston

Max Pacioretty broke out of a scoring slump with a goal and an assist in the second period and Carey Price made 26 saves as the Montreal Canadiens downed the Boston Bruins 4-0 to force a seventh game in their Eastern Conference semifinal series on Monday night.

The series is tied 3-3 going into Game 7 on Wednesday night in Boston.

Pacioretty, who had only one assist in the first five games, scored and set up Thomas Vanek's goal in the second period. Lars Eller scored in the first for Montreal and Vanek added his second of the game into an empty net with 3:56 left in regulation time.

Rookie Nathan Beaulieu, the Canadiens' 2011 first-round draft pick who was given a surprise start by coach Michel Therrien, picked up an assist in his first NHL playoff game and was plus-2.

The Canadiens repeated the scenario of their 2011 first-round series against the Bruins, winning at home to force a Game 7. That year, they lost the decisive game in overtime.

Despite having the best of the play in the opening 20 minutes, the Canadiens needed a freak play for the only goal.

Kevan Miller lost the puck off his stick behind the Boston net and then inadvertently tripped goalie Tuukka Rask as he tried to smother it, leaving Eller free to score unassisted 2:11 into the game.

Screaming Eagles net defenceman in trade with Sherbrooke

Sources close to the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey league confirmed a trade on Monday for Sherbrooke Phoenix defenceman and team captain Jonathan Deschamps.

In the deal, which cannot be officially announced until the start of the league's trading period on May 30, the Eagles acquired Deschamps, 18, and a fourth-round pick in the 2016 entry draft.

In return, the Screaming Eagles sent 18-year-old goaltender Alex Bureau to the Phoenix, along with a second-round pick in the upcoming entry draft (39th overall) and the rights to defenceman Louis-Philippe Pagé, a 2012 Screaming Eagles second-round draft choice who never played with the team. If Pagé plays for the Phoenix, the fourth-round 2016 pick sent to the Eagles could become a third-round pick.

Bureau, a former second-round pick, 21st overall, by the Screaming Eagles in 2012, posted a 21-19 win-loss record with a 3.78 goals-against average and a 0.868 save percentage during the 2013-14 season.

Deschamps had three assists in 61 games with the second-year Phoenix last season.

The draft is May 31 in Sherbrooke, Que., one day after the league's trading period opens.

Canadian captain Kevin Bieksa had a fat lip but it was worth it.

Canada scored twice on a five-minute major penalty to Jan Kovar for slashing Bieksa, which was enough to build a lead that stood up for a 4-3 victory over the Czech Republic at the world hockey championship on Monday.

Joel Ward, Kyle Turris, Nathan MacKinnon and Morgan Rielly scored for the Canadians, who won their second straight game to improve to 2-0-1 at the tournament. They moved to the top of Group A with seven points.

It looked like the three points would come easily, even after Canada gave up the first goal of the game to Roman Cervenka. But Czech goals by Jiri Novotny and Tomas Hertl midway through the third period made things a little too close for comfort at Chizhovka-Arena in Minsk, Belarus.

Canada was able to hold on because of what they did in the second, when MacKinnon and Rielly scored 17 seconds apart on the power play.

James Reimer, tested with 13 shots in the first period while his teammates mustered just four, was stellar in picking up his first victory of the tournament with 31 saves.

Czech starter Jakub Kovar gave up four goals on 13 shots before getting pulled late in the second period. Alexander Salak punched Alex Burrows in the head only seconds after he entered, but he wasn't a factor much of the rest of the way. THE CANADIAN PRESS

James sets Heat for Game 5 wrap

Miami leads 3-1.

Downing a post season career-high 49 points, forward shines again in a thrilling, tight victory against Nets

LeBron James tied his playoff career high with 49 points, Chris Bosh made the tie-breaking 3-pointer with 57 seconds left, and the Miami Heat beat the Brooklyn Nets 102-96 on Monday night for a 3-1 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinals.

James carried the Heat nearly the entire way until Bosh hit the shot that put Miami ahead for good. Ray Allen followed with four free throws and James finished it off with one more, putting the Heat in position to wrap it up at home Wednesday in Game 5.

James was 16 of 24 from the field and 14 of 19 from the free throw line in matching the 49 points he scored for Cleveland against Orlando in the 2009 Eastern Conference finals. He missed his second free throw with 1.1 seconds left, muttering to himself after it fell out.

Game 4

Joe Johnson scored 18 points for the Nets, who were 15 of 25 from 3-point range in their Game 3 victory but only 5 of 22 in this one. Paul Pierce scored 16 points, while Deron Williams and Shaun Livingston each had 13.

Dwyane Wade scored 15 points on the night his Heat post-season record of 46 points was shattered. Bosh finished with 12.

Miami pulled out a thrilling victory in a game neither team led by double digits and has won at least one road game in 14 straight series, breaking the record set by the Chicago Bulls from 1991-94.

Brooklyn opened the fourth quarter with six straight points to grab an 82-79 edge, and neither team had a bigger margin than that in the period until Kevin Garnett's two free throws tied it with 2:30 remaining.

Both teams then couldn't score, with Bosh missing a pair of jumpers before getting a third crack at it when the Heat swung the ball around to him in the corner in front of the Brooklyn bench for a 3 that made it 97-94. Johnson then missed a jumper while trying to draw James' sixth foul, and Allen's free throws put it away.

Wade scored 46 points against Boston in the first round of the 2010 playoffs, and James' best in a Heat uniform had also come against the Celtics, his memorable 45-point performance that saved Miami's season in Game 6 of the 2012 Eastern Conference finals.

Stampeders 'outraged' over Price's tweets

The Calgary Stampeders say they are "outraged by the offensive comments" posted on wide receiver Maurice Price's Twitter account that appeared to disparage the sexual orientation of NFL draft pick Michael Sam.

"The comments are repugnant and in no way reflect the organization's views or values," the CFL club said in a statement late Monday. "The matter will now be dealt with internally."

A tweet removed from @MauricePrice17 within an hour of its initial posting said "My faith won't allow me to ACCEPT what took place over the weekend. Sorry. NOT sorry! #AdamandEve #NotAdamandAdam."

"And it's highly disturbing that under the current constitution individuals have been fined for verbalizing their thoughts," another tweet read.

Sam became the first openly gay football player selected in the NFL draft Saturday when the St. Louis Rams drafted him in the seventh round. ESPN and the NFL Network both included video of Sam kissing his male partner in celebration during their coverage of the draft.

Stampeders wide receiver Maurice Price GETTY IMAGES

A later tweet from Price's account, which was also removed, said "Of course my words get misconstrued. I wish Sam nothing but the best and hope he has a fantastic career. It's nothing personal against him."

The CFL fined Montreal Alouettes wide receiver Arland Bruce in February for urging Sam on social media to "submit fully to God."

Winnipeg Blue Bombers defensive tackle Bryant Turner Jr., was also fined then for a tweet saying "Michael Sam locker-room gonna come with complimentary robes."

In the NFL, Miami Dolphins safety Don Jones was fined an undisclosed amount and will undergo educational training after he tweeted "OMG" and "Horrible" shortly after Sam's name was announced Saturday. The tweets were taken down a short time later.

Jones apologized for his comments and described them as inappropriate. The Dolphins said Jones has been excused from all team activities until he completes training related to his comments.

Buehrle avoids Jays home sweep

Mark Buehrle picked up his Major League-leading seventh win of the season with the help of the long ball Monday night as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Los Angeles Angels 7-3 at the Rogers Centre.

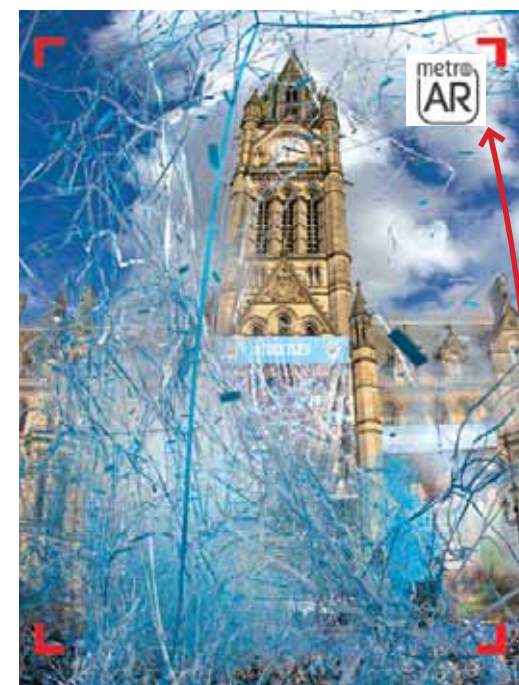

The veteran left-hander gutted it through six-plus innings despite not possessing his best stuff, running his record to 7-1 before a crowd of 13,603. Buehrle gave up six hits and walked five but was able to limit the Angels to just a pair of runs even though he had base runners in each of his final five innings.

It marks the first time in his 15-year career that Buehrle has won seven of his first eight starts.

Jose Bautista and Brett Lawrie gave Buehrle all the offence he needed.

Each drilled second-deck home runs as the Blue Jays (19-20) ended a three-game losing streak and salvaged the finale of the four-game series.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

You have started many new things in recent weeks but you will soon have to choose which one or two projects you are going to focus on. There's no point trying to do it all.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

With the Sun moving through your birth sign you are eager to start something new. Don't wait for Lady Luck to drop opportunities into your lap — get out there and create them yourself.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Everyone has daydreams but the power of your imaginings could lead you in some unusual directions. Try to keep a grip on reality today, otherwise your mind could float away!

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Work hard but leave yourself time for fun too. Friends will come by when you least expect it and you should be ready to drop what you are doing and make them feel welcome.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You will be extraordinarily assertive on the work front, but you could also annoy people who think you are trying to usurp their position. You must stay on good terms with those in positions of power.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You will find that a number of questions you have been asking over the past few weeks will answer themselves. Whether or not the answers are to your liking, at least you will know what it all means.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Fears you thought had been put behind you will return in unexpected ways. However, if you face up to those fears and deal with them bravely the planets indicate this will be the very last time they bother you.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

The next few days are mainly about relationships. Challenges must be dealt with and certain people must be told in no uncertain terms that you are the boss. Compromise is possible, but only after you establish your authority.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

If you need to make changes in your working environment now is the time. Some of your colleagues won't like what you do but that's too bad. Either they fit in with your plans or they move out.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

This is one of the best times of the year for you and you really should be making the most of it. Most things are possible, so set your sights high and make greatness your goal.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

A difference of opinion with a friend or family member could get out of hand, so promise yourself no matter what is said you won't overreact. Soon all will be forgotten.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Travel is on the cards but so are hold-ups and unexpected diversions. Wherever you end up you'll have a lot of fun, so don't stay home — get out into the world. SALLY BROMPTON
